Whig City Caucus.

The Whigs of the City of Bangor are notified that a caucus at the City Hall will be held on TUESDAY EVENING next, Sept. 5th at half past seven o'clock precisely for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Mayor, and two candidates for Representatives to be elected on Monday next.

VOTES!!

It should be borne in mind by the Whigs of the County of Penobscot that the late period at which the nominations were made leaves but little time for applying to all the towns with votes. This matter should be immediately attended to by the county and town Committees.

We are ready to supply all orders at reasonable rates.

Extracts from a Letter from Stanislaw Gold Diggings.

CALIFORNIA, May 31 1849

Since arriving in California I have traveled much over the mining country and the best diggings and now after having dug gold about six weeks in various places and from mature observation I have come to the conclusion that going to California to dig gold is a grand humbug. I may make high—about $5 a day at common fortune to get here, and half another to get boots and other outfits and all for mining. It is now considered that miners are fortunate if they can get on an average $8 per day—or from 3 to 5 ounces. Some are more fortunate, and get pounds in, and of coarse but nineteen twentieths clear but daily wages. This being the case I have ceased for the present to be a miner, and have become a trader. Henry has done the same with the like amount of experience in digging. Those who come here after this will be great losers, and will rue the day—as do many of us—that they ever left their American homes. I wish there was some way of undeceiving my countrymen in regard to coming here. There is gold enough, it is true but at present it costs all or nearly all it is worth to dig it. [illegible] Thomas sold his $3 boots for $11, shirts 5 cents drawers 5. In proportion. We got about $12 out of part of a paper of tacks or nails and of an axe which cost here 12½. The extra balls for our rifle and pistols sold for about $20. But few were scarce articles. I sold about everything at cost $40 for 18 ounces or over $300 and a pair of pistols that cost $10 for $150. But unfortunately, I have nothing more to sell. I had pairs of boots, and sold two of them for $104, and the other for $18. But [illegible] are over. Things are now cheap. Flour [illegible] a pound—pork $1 and hard bread $1. [illegible] Beef $1.50 sugar $.70 &c. But the [illegible] of prices here is the glass of liquor. When [illegible] there was one dollar, now it is but fifty [illegible]

Miners are the most notorious people in the [illegible]. One day it is all for the Sacramento, and [illegible] it is all for the San Joaquin. The diggings also dull and lonesome as worthless are occupied to day by a party coming from the opposite direction. In this way the instantly men float about getting just enough to live on and to keep them on [illegible] which they consider as more essential than food.

I write this in my tent on the top of a raisin box surrounded by a dozen Indians women and children—staring at the strange characters I am making. I am here for the purpose of trading with these Indians of which I am a part of a tribe—some two hundred or so in the neighborhood. I am quite alone [illegible] Americans came near me at night but go away from one to two o'clock to work. At first there was no trade at all but I have been constantly gaining and now have the prospect of doing a pretty fair business. The Indians mostly go out more days to dig, and bring me in the evening the various earnings which they exchange for flour and meat sugar &c. The first crop of gold which can lay on the top of the beds of creeks and ravines having been taken off—those people who came here from 40 cts to $12 worth a day. All there [illegible] over who are not sorry for the support of life goes for liquor (which I will not sell) hemp and for such other articles as suit their fancies. The Indians here are sober quiet and harmless. [illegible] but I [illegible] them I [illegible] a severe lesson which is approved of by the by traders.

Henry is trading out of six miles below me is much respected—has been appointed Alcalde and has had several important trials before him.

Bangor Antiquarian Society—Blueberry Plains.

In a recent number of the Portland Advertiser it was said that about twenty bushels of berries were carried from New Hampshire to Lowell, Mass, and sold in the same place for four dollars a bushel—that by yielding such freights as these for the fruitful speculator. On reading this account I wondered, that the Bangor Antiquarian Society, in all their researches had never discovered, and made known the vast blueberry plains which in East of Cherryfield and Columbia, and which, if there were any convenient markets to purchase their produce, would afford a greater increase, and profit, than all the lumber cut and manufactured on the Narraguagus, and Pleasant rivers. Hundreds—yes, thousands of acres on these plains are in the season, as now, literally blue with these delicious berries, and there is scarcely any limit to the quantity that might be gathered, if there could be found a ready conveyance from the Narraguagus by which an easy and quick communication could be had to large cities, it would at once pay well to build a Railroad from these plains for the sole purpose of transporting by this communication the treasures, they supply. It is said, that last season a man and his wife picked one bar'l of these berries in a day. It is difficult, without seeing them, to conceive the abundance they afford. These plains present in their geographical attachments some remarkable features, and although they were once covered with timber, now bear some resemblance to a Western Prairie.

They yield not only fruit, but rich herbage for cattle, and droves are every year turned upon them to fatten. They seem also to be a favorite resort for deers, and could supply a considerable market with venison. But I will no trespass upon the duty and privilege of the Society, whose name heads this article to enumerate and describe all the particulars relating to these remarkable plains. There is one distinguished member at least of this distinguished society, who is fully acquainted with them, and I hope he will not consider it beneath his pen or eloquence to enlighten the public on these subjects as he has already done upon others of a kindred though perhaps more important character. He is truly deserving of much credit and praise for the pains he has taken in distributing oral information on and he must still continue to gratify and instruct by his valuable essays in this branch of knowledge. The great people of Bangor have good reason to feel and take an interest in these productive plains, as more than twenty six bushels of these uncommonly sweet and wholesome fruit have recently been sent, at different times, by one individual to their lonely city, in, or rather upon the final stage. If they would only come in swarms, and gather them fresh from the bushes, what a glorious feast they would have! Having called your attention to this local topic let me ask you, Mr Editor, if your and other papers would not be more wisely employed in encouraging enterprise to develope, and bring into collected use the various resources of our own State, than in exciting by inimical jealousies and captivating scenes an inordinate thirst to explore for [illegible] mineral treasures more uncertain and less profitable than these, they might find at home.—And where the labor to acquire them would not be attended with any fatal results?

These simple blueberries under circumstances which might be made to cost, would be as valuable as California mineral gold. We are seldom satisfied with surmounting one obstacle—the distance and enchantment to the view. The Press should be supported and honored, that will labor to make men contented with what they can have without going twenty thousand miles in pursuit of riches and then be disappointed in the acquisition.

The blueberry plains I have mentioned, however humbly may be their pretensions should teach a moral which the wisest ought not to be ashamed to learn. While they give reason to believe, that nature has prepared other store of luxury and wealth, which are waiting to be unlocked by the hand of industry and enterprize, and which, if that opening would be more profitably employed than in washing gold from the sands in California, at the expense of health and comfort—of domestic enjoyments and religious blessings. There are some honorable exceptions to the popular and bewitching course which the Journal Press has generally pursued—papers, which in spite of the opposing current have maintained to exalt a warning voice, and though again at their present interest, have not hesitated to avow the truth, and to urge that it [illegible] in behalf of reason and humanity. The Whig and Courier, so long and so able and faithful advocate of social virtue and speedy put unto should still plead for the end principle and security of [illegible]

Fidelity.

Never forsake a friend. When enemies gather around—when sickness falls on the heart—when the world is dark and cheerless—is the time to try true friendship. The heart that has been touched with the true gold will redouble its efforts when the friend is sad and in trouble. Adversity is a real friendship. They who turn from scenes of distress, betray their hypocrisy and prove that interest only moves them. If you have a friend who loves you—who has studied your interest and happiness—be sure to sustain and him in adversity. Let him feel that his former kindness is appreciated, and that he was not thrown away. Real friendship may be rare, but it exists in the heart. Who have seen and felt its power? They only [illegible] have real power who have never loved [illegible] to make a friend happy—[illegible] the affectionate and the virtuous see and [illegible] heavenly principle. They will [illegible] wealth and honor to promote the [illegible] of others and in return freely receive the [illegible] by sympathizing hearts and countless favors when they have been brought low by disease or adversity.

Savage

The editor of a New York paper noticing the marriage of Mr Hawks and Miss Thomas expresses a hope that they will raise a young brood of Tommy Hawks!

Locofoco Experiments.

The party now in the ascendant in this State has the assurance to pass itself off as the only genuine democracy, as the only true friends of the rights and interests of the masses of the people. We should like to see some of their organs point out what this claim consists in, or is founded upon, and wherein it is any better than the Whig party. We contend it is not half so good—not so true to the interests of the many. It always has a penny for a sixpence and hunting to delude ignorance, but rarely any measures of genuine benevolence, wise foresight, or good policy. After the business of the country had completely run down under the withering influence of the compromise tariff of 1833 the Whigs of 1842 restored substantially the tariff of 1828, and the effect was wonderful—The banks of the country revived everywhere, and was never more prosperous. Even in Maine we began to build mills and factories, and our interior water power attracted capital and labor long populated. The 28th Congress, which succeeded, had a majority of about sixty Locofocos in the House. Yet in that body a new "free trade" tariff bill was defeated in 1844 as it was not until all the power and patronage and influence of Mr Polk's administration added to the corrupting and persevering influence of foreign merchants and manufacturers by their agents at Washington, that the Tariff of 1846 was got through. The moon struck the ears of the then dominant party, deluded themselves or were deluded by the foreign agents who contrived that tariff, [illegible] nation that the more we imported of their foreign goods, the more we should necessarily export of our agricultural productions, and that the South and West would profit by this, the South get more of its cotton and the West more for its flour, corn beef and pork.

A temporary famine in Europe [illegible] while helped to alter their views, but the famine is now over and the foreign demand for our produce is now falling off, yet the foreign goods are still pouring in upon us and our own manufacturers struggling for existence. What has Maine gained by the tariff of 1846? What should we have gained had the foreign demand for flour and corn continued as it was in 1847? Nothing. We see none of these arrives to Europe. Who does not know that since the present tariff went into operation not a factory has been built in Maine, unless it be one or two in Saco? Scarcely a mill of any kind. Previous to that mills and factories were going up in Brunswick, Hallowell, Augusta, and sundry other places. But who thinks of building one now, or buying factory stock at par? Look at this town! Many houses have been built, but though there is water enough running to waste over the dam to give employment to ten thousand men, if applied to machinery, not a mill has been built for several years and probably none will be till we have some of the leaks stopped in the revenue laws. Every owner of property, every farmer, every mechanic every laboring man, has a deep interest in sustaining the present national administration. Not that the tariff of 1842 will be exactly restored. That is not necessary, and perhaps not expedient, though that was a good tariff, still the present ad valorem system must be changed, and the policy of protection adopted again. Before the country can go ahead. And it was the time to the manliest and the conviction of the people of Maine on the subject. They have a senator in Congress to elect for six years, and other important officers to elect. Now is the hour to do to these things.

BANGOR.

BY MARSHALL PIKE

New England's city of the East,
On wild Penobscot's shore,
Far from the ocean's mighty dash,
Or broad Atlantic's roar.
Upon two jagged lofty hills,
That tower unto the skies,
A thousand homes with happy hearts
Towards the blue heavens rise.

New England's city of the East,
A few short years ago,
The Red man's hunting ground was here,
The white man was his foe;
While from the native's bending bow,
The lightning arrow flew,
Or down the river's rapid tide
Was borne the light canoe.

New England's city of the East,
The weak in power must bend,
The pale face proved the map of man,
The Indian turned his friend;
As by his axe the forests fell,
And traffic marts were made,
Then'chime to thee from lands afar,
A nation's craft for trade.

New England's city of the East,
The stream that laves thy shore,
Bears on its waves now many a keel
That's kissed it o'er and o'er,
And every tide that surges out,
To meet the unresting sea,
Takes from thy quays one freighted bark,
That brings back wealth to thee.

New England's city of the East,
Though 'mid thy sisters far,
There's many an eye that's watching thee,
Like some lone rising star;
While friendly hearts afar off praise
Thy dimpled lands of green,
Who to seem thee grown to loveliness,
And call thee "Eastern Queen."

New England's city of the East,
Most modest of them all,
Prettier far than cities old,
With stone and marble wall;
For thoughtful winters older be,
And snow deck deep thy lands,
There's not a spot on earth can boast
Of warmer hearts and hands.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY.

We have an utter abhorrence for all kinds of patent nostrums, especially such as are calculated to mislead the public as to the curative virtues of patent medicines. There are doubtless many such deceptive nostrums, daily vended and hourly used, which are not only of no value, but absolutely deleterious to the physical man. There are other balsams, extracts, &c. not at present in existence in the pharmaceutic arrangements of the apothecary or regular physician, that will certain cases do more satisfaction than all the prescriptions of Galen put together—WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY is combated by the concurrent testimony of those who have proved its virtues to be of the first class. In colds, consumption, asthma, and chronic coughs it would act as in other hindered diseases it has been more than almost successful. In a climate so changeable as this, superintending and engendering the family of diseases above attached to, the need of some such remedy as this cannot be too estimated.

None genuine unless signed I. BUTTS on the wrapper.

PENOBSCOT MUSICAL ASSOCIATION.

The Second Annual Session of the Penobscot Musical Association will be held in Bangor commencing at 10 o'clock A. M., on and continuing three days.

TUESDAY SEPT 25, 1849

B. F. Baker, Esq. of Boston, will be present and deliver a series of Lectures on various subjects connected with the science and practice of Music,—and conduct the Musical performances.

The interest of the occasion will be enhanced by the presence of Mes. B. F. Baker and N. D. Gould of Boston, who have accepted invitations to be present. Addresses and remarks will be made by them.

The object of the Association is to promote and sustain an interest in this part of the State,—and by no way can it be more effectually advanced than by the attendance and earnest co-operation of all interested in the subject at meetings like the one now proposed.—Previous Conventions in this city, and other places, have abundantly shown that

Any gentleman may become a member by subscribing to the Constitution and paying his proportion of the necessary expenses. The assessments for these are not burdensome, as the Pupils Concert which is given at the close of the session, will defray the larger part of them. Ladies who sing, may become members by furnishing their names and residence to the Secretary.

All Clergymen are invited to attend upon the Exercises without charge.

☞ Lest any should suppose from the name of the Association, that it is confined to the County of Penobscot, it may be observed, that it is designed to embrace the whole region of the Penobscot. And all friends of Music in all the eastern and northern Counties of the State are invited to be present on the occasion.

☞ Tickets may be procured at the Bookstore of E. F. DUREN, No 2, Cothe Block, Main-St.

McFARLAND'S CHOLERA SYRUP

IS NOT A QUACK MEDICINE, but a prescription of medical science, and such a

Secret Medicine,

As I am willing to let every one who takes a Bottle of it know what it is composed of which it is composed. I purchase the advance of the Ingredients of it in all parts, come to take a certain cure of Cholera and Cholera Morbus.

It is recommended to every head of a family to keep a Bottle of this Syrup constantly on hand to be used according to direction at all attacks of Cholera and if relief is not obtained a Physician can be procured. Many lives may be saved by this course.

I believe this to be the best remedy that has ever been before the public for all Bowel Complaints, and have received the recommendations of Medical men in this city to which I have shown the Recipe. Scientifically and faithfully prepared only by G. McFARLAND, Druggist, No 1 Bangor Street, and at no other place in Bangor.

Price only 25 cents a Bottle.
